We are authorized to announce G. W. TATE a candidate for Sheriff of Madison county subject to the action of the Democratic primary, August, 1915.

Why Do Bears Bite Trees?

"A bear never gets tired," said a Pike county man full of the subject that has made that corner of the Keystone State somewhat famous. "No one ever saw a tired bear. A bear will travel 100 miles over the roughest kind of ground and through swamps and thickets without ever thinking of resting, if hard pressed, and be just as fresh for another 100 miles as he was when he started on the first."

"If he has time he will sit down once in a while to take a bite to eat, as the hunter can see if he is following. Bruin is a cracking snow. This and the curious custom that the bear has of turning off his course when traveling, whether the dogs and hunters are after him or not, and going to certain trees on one or other side of his course, where he bites viciously at the trunk until the splinters fly, are the only digressions he makes from his route."

"The habit of biting trees in this way while traveling has never been satisfactorily explained. The trees may be two rods or they may be half a mile or more off of the bear's line of travel, but no bear passing that way ever fails to sheer off to them and bite off a piece, unless he is too closely pressed by the dogs or hunters. Any old woodsman can take you in the woods to trees of that kind that have almost bitten in two by bears that have stopped and chewed in obedience to the custom."

"The bears must have some reason or purpose, of course, in picking out certain trees to be visited and bitten, but what it can be no one knows, any more than why bears never fall on coming out of their winter sleeping quarters in the spring to rise, full length, against some particular tree, reach up as far as they can along the trunk and scratch a mark in the bark with their claws."

"Natives of the bear country say that Bruin does this to see whether he has grown any since he holed up in the fall, while others declare it is a challenge to other bears as a test of their high-reaching powers in competition. Perhaps neither is right."—N. Y. Sun.

Fields Will Win.

H. G. Ireland, of Carter county, the Republican nominee for Congress in the Ninth district, is trying to make some fuss up there, but with apparent little success, in enlisting what it left of the Ninth district g. o. p. The general impression seems to be that Congressman W. J. Fields, of Carter county, his Democratic opponent, will be returned to Congress for his third term with 10,000 majority, which was the size of his plurality in the August primary over the closest one of his four opponents.

Important to All Women
Readers of This Paper.

Thousands upon thousands of women have kidney or bladder trouble and never suspect it.

Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease.

If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

You may suffer a great deal with pain in the back, bearing down, feeling, headache and loss of ambition.

Poor health makes you nervous, irritable and may be despondent; it makes any one so.

But hundreds of women claim that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, by restoring health to the kidneys, proved to be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

A good kidney medicine, possessing real healing and curative value, should be a blessing to thousands of nervous, over-worked women.

Many send for a sample bottle to see what Swamp-Root, the great Kidney, Liver and Bladder Remedy will do for them. Every reader of this paper, who has not already tried it, by enclosing ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Elmhurst, N. Y., may receive sample size bottle by Parcel Post. You can purchase the regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles at all drug stores.

DISSOLUTION NOTICE

The produce firm heretofore known as Wides & Sandlin was, by mutual consent, dissolved September 1, 1914. Mr. Wides will continue buying at same location, corner Main and Orchard Streets. He will pay highest cash market prices and will treat his patrons as honest and loyal as heretofore. Thanking all for past patronage and trusting to serve all in the future, I am very truly yours

"A Really Fine Blunder."

To men who fail, success seems a matter of luck. The critics of the President's policy in Mexico are confounded by the failure of their predictions. Each day they have expected bloodshed, disaster to our forces, or dissensions in the camp of Carranza. They could not believe that moral pressure strong enough could be exerted to drive Huerta from Mexico.

When it was manifest that the dynasty of assassination was certain to fall, they predicted that Mexico City would be surrendered, but only after a bloody battle. Then that General Villa in the North would organize another revolution; then that the United States would have to send a great army to Mexico to keep the peace.

It is a grievous disappointment to all these prophets of evil that none of these disasters has come upon these two nations. They console themselves with the declaration that they have been narrowly averted—which may be true—or that there will be trouble in the land before the winter is over—which is possible. Indeed, anything is possible in Mexico now, even peace and prosperity under the Wilson doctrine of moral suasion, backed by a "demonstration in force."

The Review of Reviews is especially disconsolate. It writes about diplomacy in the most oracular manner, and discusses our foreign relations in a most patronizing way. It says: "No one pretends that the seizure of Vera Cruz was a premeditated policy."

The seizure of Vera Cruz took place in the execution of a premeditated policy of exclusion and peace. Had that step not sufficed, another would have been taken.

All that we have done and all that we have refrained from doing has been done, or not done, in the execution of a policy clearly outlined by the President in public addresses and in official messages and orders, and adhered to with a persistency of purpose like unto that of Washington, like unto that declared by Lincoln in his letter to Horace Greeley, a newspaper critic of his day.

For the Review to speak of it as "a really fine blunder" discredits the Review.

Positively Masters Croup.

Foley's Honey and Tar Compound cuts the thick, choking mucus and clears away the phlegm. Opens up the air passages and stops the hoarse cough. The gasping, strangling fight gives way to quiet breathing and peaceful sleep. Harold Berg, Mass. Mich. writes: "I give Foley's Honey and Tar to our children for croup and it always acts quickly." No wonder a man in Texas walked 15 miles to the store to get a bottle of Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. Every user is a friend. For sale by all dealers everywhere.—Adv. Oct. 1m

Woman Policeman.

Somerset is probably the first town in Kentucky to have a woman policeman. The city council gave Miss Lena Hamm a position on the force on three months' experiment. She is known as policeman No. 5. The women of Somerset asked that she be appointed.

Stop Those Early Bronchial Coughs.

They hang on all winter if not checked, and pave the way for serious throat and lung diseases. Get a bottle of Foley's Honey and Tar Compound, and take it freely. Stops coughs and colds, heals raw, inflamed throat, loosens the phlegm and is mildly laxative. Chas. T. Miller, editor Esquire, Cannelton, Ind., had bronchial trouble got very hoarse, and coughed constantly from a tickling throat. He used only Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. Was entirely relieved. Wants others to know of Foley's Honey and Tar. For sale by all dealers everywhere.—Adv. Oct. 1m

Everybody Pleased

Roosevelt is pleased that the Progressive party polled enough votes in Maine to beat the Republicans. The Republicans are pleased on account of the big falling off in the Progressive vote and the Democrats are pleased that they carried the State and increased the Wilson vote. Everybody happy!

Homemade Cotton Gown.

Miss McChord, the daughter of Hon. Charles C. McChord of the Interstate Commerce Commission, is going to wear a cotton gown made by herself from cotton grown at her own home, at the fashion show in Washington. We remember when her father used to be called Cot McChord, which we suppose was an abbreviation of Cotton.

Wet And Dry Vote.

Elections were held in 12 counties of the State Monday, Sept. 28th and nine out of the 12 went "dry." Below will be found a list of the counties that voted and a record of the vote:

|                        |      |
|------------------------|------|
| Bell, dry by.....      | 800  |
| Clark, dry by.....     | 336  |
| Bourbon, dry by.....   | 405  |
| Mason, dry.....        | 353  |
| Montgomery, dry.....   | 242  |
| Shelby, dry by.....    | 553  |
| Scott, dry by.....     | 413  |
| Carroll, dry by.....   | 517  |
| Boone, dry by.....     | 530  |
| Fayette, wet.....      | 3364 |
| Anderson, wet by.....  | 64   |
| Henderson, wet by..... | 1053 |

There are now only 14 counties in the State "wet" and the rest of the 120 "dry."

To The Point.

Only the coward stays whipped. Don't count your eggs until you see whether or not they have chickens in 'em.

A man who fits a linen suit must be fearfully and wonderfully made.

There is no disappointment quite as bitter as disappointment in ourselves. Don't burn your bridges ahead of you.

It is often said in a sort of uncomplimentary sort of a way that no man understands woman. It would be interesting to know how many men understand man.

It only takes a little while to get to the poor house if you travel with enough rapidly.

Man and woman should not try to travel in double harness when they are meant to drive tandem.

After all it does not seem as if people outside of automobiles take as big chances as those inside.

Statesmanship consists mostly in not letting people know what a good-for-nothing plug you are.

A writer who ought to know says there is no plural for grapefruit. That's singular!

A female friend with no desire to marry has proved a big asset to many a man.

A person never really does his duty unless he does it for the real pleasure of the thing.

About all some people do to keep in physical condition is to exercise their prerogatives.

Happiness is one of the things that you can't have delivered at your back door.

You don't expect to get back the principal on a charitable investment—but you draw compound interest in happiness.

There is lots of false economy in this world. A woman will waste five dollars worth of time saving for ten cents worth of string.

Prof. Budlong Praises
Rheuma

Suffered For Years With Rheumatism and Kidney Diseases.

"I Believe Your Remedy To Be The Best In The World."

Prof. C. J. Budlong, of Sound View, Conn., does not hesitate to endorse Rheuma, the old standard remedy for rheumatism which is convincing thousands of persons every year that the disease can be cured. Read his letter:

"For many years I was troubled with rheumatism and also Bright's disease of the kidneys. I suffered most awfully. I tried all the advertised remedies. At last I used your truly remarkable preparation—Rheuma. I can only say that I believe your remedy to be the best in the world. It surely cured me. Refer to me. All letters gladly answered."

Rheuma simply does not remedy defects in your shattered system—it permanently removes the cause—gets into blood and purifies it, allowing the poisonous uric acid to pass off through the kidneys, bowels and skin.

Rheuma costs only 50 cents of B. L. Middleton and other druggists.—Adv. Oct. 7-14.

Only 16 Years Old.

A girl only 16 years of age carried off the honors at the State Fair in Ohio for baking, canning and sewing. She had evidently not been taught to play the piano while mother washed the dishes and did the drudgery.

Asthma and Hay Fever
A Guaranteed Relief

"I have arranged with HENRY L. PERRY, Richmond, Ky., so that every sufferer from Asthma, Hay Fever or Bronchial Asthma in Richmond can try my treatment entirely at my risk." Dr. Rudolph Schiffman announces. He says: "Buy a 50-cent package of my Asthma-ador, try it, and if it does not afford you immediate relief, or if you do not find it the best remedy you have ever used, take it back to Henry L. Perry and he will refund your money cheerfully and without any question whatever. After seeing the grateful relief it has afforded in hundreds of cases, which had been considered incurable, and which had been given up in despair, I know what it will do. I am so sure that it will do the same with others that I am not afraid to guarantee it will relieve instantaneously. The druggists handling Asthma-ador will return your money if you say so. You are to be the sole judge and under this positive guarantee, absolutely no risk is run in buying Asthma-ador."

In Estill County.

James A. Wallace purchased of S. M. Maple a sow with a litter of nine pigs, from which Mr. Wallace expects to raise a new breed of hogs in Estill county.

This breed of wild hog was brought from the timbered section of Wisconsin, where they thrive and multiply with unusual rapidity when crossed with the native hog, and grow to weigh between 300 to 400 pounds. They are hardy and immune from disease, while their flesh is of fine flavor.

This sow is of reddish brown color on the back, with a grey coloring of hair underneath, long, sharp snout and large tusks; is very ferocious and will attack man or beast if provoked.

This sow weighs about 190 pounds, but it took four men and plenty of rope to deliver her to Mr. Wallace, who intends sending her to his farms on Sweet Lick.—Estill Tribune.

Woman's World

Mrs. Catt, Noted Suffrage Leader and Orator.

MRS. CARRIE CHAPMAN CATT.

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt is one of the most interesting and magnetic of the suffrage leaders. She began life as a teacher in Iowa, was superintendent of public schools at twenty-two years of age, went into the suffrage ranks as an active worker in 1888. Since then she has studied law and medicine and has the equipped mind of the woman who has traveled the world over studying conditions of women in all foreign lands. She is the president of the International Suffrage alliance and has addressed audiences in England, Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Holland, Saxony, Bohemia, Prussia, Hungary and in Africa and the far east. Everywhere the charm of her womanhood won her admiration, and when the alliance met in Stockholm three years ago she was called all over Scandinavia "America's uncrowned queen."

Mrs. Catt is an orator as well as organizer and a teacher of the suffrage school. Her written words bristle with oratory. She has spoken for the suffrage in every state in the Union save Florida, carrying her message before legislatures and constitutional conventions. On her return from Europe, where she has been attending a meeting of the International Suffrage alliance, she expects to take part in suffrage work in New York.

The Empire State campaign committee is making many plans for fall. After election representatives from every state in the Union where women vote will assemble in New York. These women will be actual voters, women who have attained the standing of citizenship in their states and who have learned from actual experience what the privilege of the vote in their hands means. What they have learned they will endeavor to impress upon the doubting Thomases of the state.

QUEENLY KINDNESS.

How the Little Old Boot Seller Was Befriended by Queen Mary.

The kindness and consideration shown by Queen Mary recently endeared her still more to the hearts of the British public. Some time ago a firm of boot sellers, which for years had enjoyed royal patronage, dismissed their manager for no other reason than that he was too old.

He set up for himself in a small shop in a southwestern suburb and was hugely surprised and delighted when it was indicated to him that Queen Mary had heard of his dismissal and had resolved to transfer her patronage to him. And now the tiny shop sports the royal arms instead of the gorgeous premises from which the manager had been dismissed.

Removing Fruit Stains.

Fruit stains are now in order, and two expert housekeepers have come forward with suggested remedies not generally known and yet labor saving.

The first is pure glycerin. The stain is to be moistened with it before the article stained is sent to the laundry. It is claimed to be quite effectual, and 20 cents' worth of glycerin ought to last a year.

The other remedy is spirits of camphor, applied as soon as possible or before the stain is wet with water or sent to the laundry.

Snap Fasteners For Neckwear.

The fashionable high standing collars and ruffles may be made removable. Instead of sewing the ruff or collar into the neck of the dress sew snaps every two or three inches along the facing of the neckpiece and the corresponding parts at equal distances on the neck of the dress. In this way a neckpiece may be quickly transferred to another dress or taken off when a dress is hung in the wardrobe or packed in a suit case.

FABRICS FOR EVENING.

Charming evening frocks are made altogether of net, dull rose or dull blue. Gray and white craggle mesh lace is used with bright colored taffeta for evening gowns.

White net frocks are best for hot weather dress occasions.

Heavier textured satins are coming in for evening wear.

Apply Sloan's Freely For Lumbago.

Your attacks of Lumbago are not nearly so hopeless as they seem. You can relieve them almost instantly by a simple application of Sloan's Liniment on the back and loins. Lumbago is a form of rheumatism, and yields perfectly to Sloan's, which penetrates quickly all through the sore, tender muscles, limbers up the back and makes it feel fine.

Get a bottle of Sloan's Liniment for 25 cents of any druggist and have it in the house—against colds sore and swollen joints, rheumatism, neuralgia, sciatica and like ailments. Your money back if not satisfied, but it does give almost instant relief.—Adv. 1m

HELD IN TRUST

By DWIGHT NORWOOD

Selling from London for America my baggage was carried on board by a steward. One of my pieces—a wicker extension case—had no mark on it, but finding one exactly like mine I carried it to my stateroom.

I had no occasion to look into this case till we had been out half the voyage, or four days. When I did I met with a surprise. It was filled with articles used by a woman. Realizing that I had changed baggage with some one, I looked over the contents to discover a name or something by which I might return it to its owner and get mine. Here again I met with a surprise. I found no mark, but came upon numerous little boxes containing jewels which were evidently very valuable. Here was a subject for a job of thinking.

Had the lady placed the jewels there merely to convey them, or did this placing them in a frail and unlocked receptacle indicate that she intended to smuggle them into America? Had they come into my possession through an error, or was I to be used as the smuggler? All the thinking I did on the matter did not solve it. The only thing I could do was to go to the purser and if any one notified him of the loss of a wicker extension case to let me know. The ship having been out four days and no one having reported such a loss, the inference seemed to be that the lady, supposing that she had her own case, had not examined its contents or—well, the only other supposition was that she would use me for a purpose. I must await developments.

The trip was a pleasant one to me, for I made some agreeable acquaintances. There were a Mrs. Harbeson and her daughter aboard, who sat a great deal on deck. A gentleman who was with them at times I met in the smoking room. We fell to talking one day about the run of the ship and thus became acquainted. Passing the ladies I have mentioned while he was with them, he made a remark to me which led to an introduction to his friends. The mother was quite cordial, but the daughter seemed a trifle ill at ease. However, since she was a pretty girl I labored to make myself entertaining and succeeded in doing away somewhat with her embarrassment or whatever it might be.

I was too circumspect to say a word to any one about my find. I left the jewels where they were in the case, which I shoved under my berth. Not knowing what trouble I might get into in the matter, I preferred, if accused, to be able to take any position that might be for the best. But my intention was to tell the truth.

The day before reaching port I concluded that I must take some action with reference to the goods, which I did not doubt had either been stolen or were to be smuggled, or both, and, going to my stateroom and locking the door, I pulled out the extension case and lifted the top. What was my astonishment to see that it contained my own belongings and did not contain any other property.

There was a mystery indeed. How the jewels came into my possession I did not know; how they left me I did not know. But this event made, and the second one having been purposely accomplished, it was evident that some game was going on. But it seemed to me now that I should never receive an explanation of the incident that the property had passed out of my possession. Indeed, I had about made up my mind before leaving the ship to turn it over to the purser.

The Harbesons, Mr. Etheridge, the man who introduced me to them, and I all made rapid progress in becoming intimate and before reaching port agreed that we should meet on the evening of our arrival for dinner at a certain uptown restaurant. We bid each other goodbye at the dock at noon, and at 7, attired in dinner costume, I met my friends in a private dining room. I was received cordially, especially by the ladies, and after getting warmed up with wine Mrs. Harbeson said to me:

"I have something to tell you provided you will promise to take no advantage of it."

I looked at her sharply. It struck me at once that she knew something about my find on shipboard. I made the required promise.

"My daughter and I," said the lady, "have done a good deal of smuggling, not for profit, but to save money on what we bring from abroad. We stopped at the same hotel as you in London. Believing that we were suspected by a detective on the other side and having some $20,000 worth of jewels to get through the New York customs house free of duty, we were at our wits' end."

"My daughter, passing along a corridor, heard you order your baggage taken to the steamer. You left your room unlocked. She went in and saw your wicker case. We had its duplicate. She put the jewels in ours, carried it to your room and took yours away."

"On the ship we asked Mr. Etheridge to bring you and introduce you that we might the better keep track of one who held our property in trust, and it was he who made the second exchange. Having baffled the detective on the other side, we knew how to fool the customs men in New York."

Extreme of Laziness. "Noodies is the laziest man I know. He has an invention fixed so that by merely pulling a wire in bed he can light the fire; but that doesn't seem to improve matters." "Why not?" "He's too lazy to pull the wire."

Improved Fountain Pens. So that it can be used in the dark a fountain pen has been equipped with a tiny electric searchlight and a storage battery by its English inventor.

COULD SCARCELY
WALK ABOUTAnd For Three Summers Mrs. Vincent Was Unable to Attend to Any of Her Housework.

Pleasant Hill, N. C.—"I suffered for three summers," writes Mrs. Walter Vincent, of this town, "and the third and last time, was my worst."

I had dreadful nervous headaches and prostration, and was scarcely able to walk about. Could not do any of my housework.

I also had dreadful pains in my back and sides and when one of those weak, sinking spells would come on me, I would have to give up and lie down, until it wore off.

I was certainly in a dreadful state of health, when I finally decided to try Cardui, the woman's tonic, and I firmly believe I would have died if I hadn't taken it.

After I began taking Cardui, I was greatly helped, and all three bottles relieved me entirely.

I fattened up, and grew so much stronger in three months, I felt like another person altogether."

Cardui is purely vegetable and gentle-acting. Its ingredients have a mild, tonic effect, on the womanly constitution.

Cardui makes for increased strength, improves the appetite, tones up the nervous system, and helps to make pale, sallow cheeks, fresh and rosy.

Cardui has helped more than a million weak women, during the past 50 years. It will surely do for you, what it has done for them. Try Cardui today.
